Feminist Studies and the Women’s Center present

HULL CHAIR LECTURE

KATIE QUAN

Women Sweatshop Workers:
Victims of Exploitation or Agents of Change?

After nearly two decades of public outcry about sweatshops, conditions have not improved substantially for garment workers in the global economy. How should the successes and shortcomings of the anti-sweatshop movement be assessed, and what steps might the movement take to be more effective? Join Katie Quan, Associate Chair of the UC Berkeley Labor Center, for this important conversation.

Thursday, February 4, 4 pm
MultiCultural Center Theater

Co-sponsored by Asian American Studies, Center for Work, Labor, and Democracy, Global Studies, and the MultiCultural Center.

For more information or assistance in accommodating a disability, please call the UCSB Women’s Center at (805) 893-3778.